

Unit Name	Unit Description
The Great Gatsby	Students will read The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald and a series of related literary and informational texts to explore the question: How are our lives influenced by our perceptions? Students will express their understanding through a literary analysis.
Friday Night Lights	In this unit we will read the nonfiction book Friday Night Lights , along with multiple additional texts—journal articles, periodicals, video clips, movies, etc.—to explore the question: How does the high school sports culture reflect American society? We will also trace the development of multiple central ideas within Friday Night Lights and analyze the way in which Bissinger develops them. We will analyze the claims about high school sports made by other authors, analyze how these claims are developed, and compare and contrast these claims with the central ideas developed in Friday Night Lights . We will express our understanding of the text and topic by writing an essay that analyzes the way in which Bissinger develops multiple central ideas about high school football within his text.
Film in America	Coming Soon
The Warmth of Other Suns	Students will read The Warmth of Other Suns by Isabel Wilkerson and a series of related literary and informational texts about the Great Migration to explore the question: How can a single decision change your life? Students will express their understanding through a multimedia presentation that examines the story of one person’s migration experience and describes the economic, societal, and/or political conditions that precipitated it.
Homeownership	In this unit, we will read various nonfiction texts related to the American ideal of homeownership, exploring such subtopics as gentrification, the creation of suburbs, the Subprime Mortgage Crisis, and recent trends in homeownership. We will evaluate and analyze the information and arguments presented in the unit texts and form our own arguments in response to these texts. We will focus on a more focused subtopic of homeownership and write an argumentative essay that makes a claim about that subtopic and how it influences the viability of the American ideal of homeownership for all Americans.

The Great Gatsby

About this Unit

By the end of this unit, your student will have read The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald and a series of related literary and informational texts to explore the following question: How are our lives influenced by our perceptions? Students will express their understanding through a literary analysis.

The main text they will read in this unit is The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald which explores how perception can shape a person's reality. Throughout this unit students will analyze the ideas of perception and ambition to better understand how Fitzgerald uses these characteristics to develop themes within the novel. At the end of the unit, students will be asked to write an essay that analyzes how Fitzgerald develops a theme about perception throughout the novel.

Unit Texts

In this unit, students will read the following texts:

- The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald
- "What Reality are You Creating for Yourself?" by Isaac Lidsky
- "The 1920s - An Overview" by Mintz, S., & McNeil, S.
- "Lost Generation"
- "The Man Who Rigged The World Series: The Making of the Mob: New York" by AMC
- Blank Map of New York City
- excerpt from Staying Put: Making a Home in a Restless World by Scott Russell Sanders
- "The Golden Touch" (pages 53-76) from A Wonder-book for Girls and Boys by Nathaniel Hawthorne
- "Causes Of The Restless Spirit Of Americans In The Midst Of Their Prosperity" from Democracy in America by Alexis de Tocqueville

Possible Supports

Support for Background Knowledge

Students might need extra support with the content and texts before starting the unit. See the support suggestions in the teaching notes for the unit. Some support options are also available in the Distance Learning Guidebook Companion Feedback Guide.

Support for Reading

A downloadable audio recording of The Great Gatsby is available at:

Students who are still learning English may need to use native language to English dictionaries/translators, native language texts (when available) and other supports to make the texts more accessible. They will need more time to read the texts.

Support for Organization

If students struggle with organization, you should

- consider printing and using a self-monitoring checklist<sup>1</sup> to help them stay on task;
- consider creating or asking students to help you create a daily or weekly to-do list<sup>2</sup> to help them stay on task and understand their responsibilities each day for school and at home;
- consider visual/pictorial directions<sup>3</sup> to help them understand what they should be doing at certain times throughout the day;
- provide clear, realistic expectations for the recommended duration of work sessions, and break assignments into manageable work periods with suggested break times throughout materials to support student needs; and/or
- provide visual support like social stories<sup>4</sup> and choice boards to reinforce expectations and support communication.

Support for Writing

If your student struggles to write, you should

- consider using tools such as transitions, grades 9-12, evidence sentence starters, grades 7-12, and organizational frames. If you are unsure of how to use these tools, you should request a telephone conference with the student's teacher for additional guidance.
- consider allowing students to respond orally while you write down their responses, if they qualify for an accommodation of transcribed answers; and/or
- consider having students write in their native language if English is not their first language, then translate their written responses into English on another day.

The Warmth of Other Suns

About this Unit

By the end of this unit, your student will have read The Warmth of Other Suns by Isabel Wilkerson and a series of related literary and informational texts about the Great Migration to explore the following question: How can a single decision change your life? Students will express their understanding through a multimedia presentation.

The main text they will read in this unit is The Warmth of Other Suns by Isabel Wilkerson, a historical study of the Great Migration: the decades-long migration of black citizens who fled the South for northern and western cities, in search of a better life. Throughout this unit students will analyze the impact of the decision to migrate on an assigned migrant based on the time period in which he/she lived. At the end of the unit, students will be asked to create a multimedia presentation that examines the story of one person's migration experience and describe the economic, societal, and/or political conditions that precipitated it.
